This is the tale of three Billy Goats Gruff.

The three goats lived on a hillside and wanted to eat the ripe grass by the stream. The horrible troll who lived under the bridge spied the goats. He thought they would be nice for his tea.

The goats decided to cross the bridge. The troll with the tight underpants was grumpy and he wanted a goat pie. He tried to stop the first goat.

The first goat was clever, he decided to trick the troll, so he replied, 'My brother is a better prize, he is bigger than me.'

The second goat crossed the bridge. The troll with the tight underpants was grumpy and he wanted fried goat with spices and rice. He tried to stop the second goat.

The second goat lied and said,

'Why do you want to eat me? My brother is bigger than me, you will like him.'

Then it was time for the third goat to cross the bridge.

'I want a ripe goat burger with fries,' cried the grumpy troll.

The third goat tried to be polite but the troll with the tight pants made him angry. The third goat cried,

'Go away!' He kicked the troll into the night sky. The troll couldn't deny he was beaten.

That night the three goats ate the ripe grass by the pine trees and they said,

'Goodbye' to the grumpy troll with the tight underpants.
